

Bucket Fillosophy®

How many marbles are in your jar?

Last year, when I turned 70, I set a vision for myself to live, work, and be independently active until I am at least 90 years old. I went out and bought a large (12" x 6") glass jar, along with 1,040 marbles to fill this jar. Each marble represents one week for the next 20 years. Every week, I take one marble out of the jar. As of this week, I have 983 marbles left.

To accompany my jar of marbles, I keep a journal. When I take the marble out of the jar each week, I think about what I did to fill other people's buckets (and my own), and write it in my journal. Our time on Earth is precious. Don't we all want to fill as many buckets, as we can, with happiness?

With the very talented artist, Glenn Zimmer, and my two-person editing team, Caryn Butzke and Sandy Richardson, we accomplished an important goal this past year. We produced our first faith-based bucketfilling book. Since I penned my first book in 2006, writing a spiritual book with God, the Bucket Filler, as the primary hero, has been on my "bucket list." We will release this book on February 1, 2021, with preorders available online now.

Best Bucket Filler Ever! God's Plan for Your Happiness is the story of God, the Bucket Filler, who loves every person and created us all to be bucket fillers. The message is simple: God loves us and wants us to be happy. As we fill buckets by treating others with love and respect, God fills our buckets in return.

This 32-page picture book is not just for children or any specific religion. It resonates with diversity and inclusiveness and was written for all ages and anyone open to the idea of a loving Creator. The core message is that God unconditionally loves you and has a plan for your happiness.

Using my "marbles" this past year has helped me reflect on this book's important message. It truly fills my bucket, and I hope it fills yours, too.

To loving others,

Carol McCloud, "The Bucket Lady"
